ROWLEY
ASHWORTH
SOLICITORS

Employment Lawyer, Leeds (1–4 yrs' pqe)

Rowley Ashworth work exclusively for Trade Unions and a combination of experience, specialisation and a modern technological approach to the work enables us to deliver at the highest level. Our sector is a demanding but rewarding one. Our clients' perspective means that money is not always the bottom line. We act regularly in appeals to the EAT and the Court of Appeal, as well as dealing with many interesting and varied tribunal claims.

This is an expansionary role in which you would be joining a Leeds based team of 10 lawyers led by two partners. However, to be capable of taking over an established caseload, you will need between 1 and 4 years' pqe. The work is often complex and requires a lawyer capable of balancing political issues against legal ones, someone who can be diplomatic yet assertive both with clients and other professionals. A commitment to act for employees is also essential.

With 27 partners and 8 offices throughout the UK we are acknowledged leaders within our sector. To maintain our high standards we put substantial investment into providing first rate in-house education and training specifically geared to the sector. We also provide a supportive team driven working environment, a good level of remuneration and full benefits package including 27 days' holiday.

Rowley Ashworth is an equal opportunities employer.
